

PCO29

1. Identify the problem. The first step in the problem-solving process is to identify the problem. This involves recognizing the issue, understanding its scope, and determining the impact it has on the organization.